The Alfred Ziegelmeyer Family:

Tracing Our Prussian Ancestors

Preface

My name is Lori Ziegelmeyer and I am the great -granddaughter of Prussian immigrant, Alfred Ziegelmeyer [1]. My grandfather is Richard Harry Adolphus Ziegelmeyer [2]. My father is Richard Harry Adolphus Ziegelmeyer [3]. The early Ziegelmeyer family was instrumental in the success of the city of Galveston, especially after the Storm of 1900. Eight -year-old Alfred [4] and his mother, Bertha Hirsch Pettich, landed in Galveston, Texas, on November 20, 1[5] and promptly made their way to Richmond, Texas. Alfred began his career as a commission merchant in Richmond before moving his family to Galveston in 1[6].

Alfred was elected secretary of the Galveston Merchants Association and is widely credited with the island's merchant success. Two of Alfred Sr.'s sons were involved in the cotton business in Galveston and Houston. The oldest, Alfred J., wrote and copyrighted the International Cotton Code [7] and can be found in the Rosenberg Library in Galveston, Texas [8]. He also wrote and copyrighted the Premier Cotton Code [9] in 1[10] with revisions in 1[11] which is housed in the Library of Congress [12]. My grandfather and Alfred Sr.'s fourth son, Richard Sr., worked for the Southern Pacific Railroad Morgan Lines and was considered one of the best-known railroad industrial officers in Texas. I felt it important to record the Ziegelmeyer family genealogy for our family, not only as a way to remember them, but as a way to record the family's Texas immigration history as well.

It is my intention to donate the Ziegelmeyer, Koschel and Voigt/Korff family information to the Rosenberg Library in Galveston, Clayton Library in Houston, George Memorial Library in Richmond, Moore Memorial Library in Texas City, and the Texas State Library and Archives Commission in Austin so our roots continue on for future generations. This project will only include the Ziegelmeyer, Koschel families. A genealogy project of the Korff/Voigt families is in the works as of 1[13].

Prologue

The Germany we know today didn't exist when the Ziegelmeyer story starts in this project. Germany, as well as other European countries, were Prussian territory and ruled by the King of Prussia. Prussia began in 1[14] and ended in 1[15]. At its peak, Prussia included half of modern Poland and all but southern Germany. Though itself one of Germany's many states, the kingdom of Prussia was comprised of West Prussia, East Prussia, Brandenburg (including Berlin), Saxony, Pomerania, the Rhineland, Westphalia, non -Austrian Silesia, Alsatia, Schleswig -Holstein, Hanover, and Hesse -Nassau. Prussia was officially abolished in 1[16] after World War II so it no longer exists. In 1[17] Germany became a nation for the first time in history. All of our Ziegelmeyer, Koschel, Voigt, and Korff families were here in the 1[18] then. Alfred and his mother left Prussia four years before Germany became a nation [4]. For this reason, the country of Prussia is cited here instead of Germany. From 1[19] to 1[20] Germany was made up of two countries called the Federal Republic of Germany (West Germany) and the Soviet controlled German Democratic Republic (East Germany). Germany became an independent nation as late as 1[21].

The Ziegelmeyer family story starts with Alfred Ziegelmeyer [4] and his immigration to the United States from Prussia. The Ziegelmeyer family name is spelled Ziegelmeier, Ziegelmeyr and Ziegelmeyer in Prussian/German records. There are only Alfred Ziegelmeyer [4] direct descendants with the Ziegelmeyer surname in Texas as of 1[22].

The picture of Alfred Sr.'s grandparents, Caroline Voss and Samuel Ziegelmeyer, has been in the family for many years and is hopefully correctly identified.

Acknowledgments and Dedication

Much of this research depended heavily on my easily connecting to internet sites with access to foreign documents. This afforded me mountains of information that previous family researchers did not have the privilege of accessing. I bow my head in humble thanks for their hard work and effort, specifically My Dorothy Voigt on the Voigt side and Gloria Ziegelmeyer Davis on the Ziegelmeyer side. I have reconstructed, validated, invalidated some information they recorded and I have holes in my own research, even with the ability to connect to German records at lightening speed. However, some research comes down to churches and some churches still don't have their records online so, short of traveling to Germany, my best has had to be done online. Also, it's hard to find news about the women in the family. Most were mothers raising children so they didn't make the newspaper unless they were civic -minded and worked with charities, churches, or ladies' groups. I assume they lived rich, full lives, as pictures suggest, but I just can't verify.

The Ziegelmeyer family research has been a joyful, personal journey for me I've made contact with several cousins I never would have met otherwise We are fortunate in that our Ziegelmeyer name is rare here in merica, especially in Te s, and that made it somewhat easier for me as a genealogist hough this effort was time-consuming, I am o er oyed to be able to share with you what I have found over the last years! I've included family trees to help you follow along as you read through this family saga The best par about researching our family has been what I call field trips going to Galveston, ichmond and enham to walk in the ancestors' footsteps by visiting cemeteries in every city and seeing the homes they lived in and places of business ecause I enjoyed that part so much, I'm also including a list of Galveston houses and businesses where each one lived and worked and, if you're so inclined, you can walk in their footsteps as well! There's something magical about being able to do that ny project requiring the time span of years to accomplish takes a lot of support I couldn't have done this without the help of my sister and first cousins and their spouses a Ziegelmeyer M k , Vicki and Clyde tton, and osephine and M vin arris avis also want to thank the grandchildren from the Ziegelmeyer and avis families for their pictures and stories My sister, la, spent countless hours with me from the beginning, reading over, correcting, adding to, and encouraging me all the way to the finish line That kind of support wasn't just welcomed, it made all the difference! I also want to include special thanks to cousins herry Ziegelmeyer ce, ena dams Cru es lie eint Fry and ad Craven for their input and valuable pictures orry, not sorry for all the time I spent bugging all of you!

I want to give a very special nod to my mother, cille Zieglemeyer avland he treated my father's fan as if it were her own he knew everybody's names, labeled pictures for me and made several photo albums which I inherited he saved V T ING he somehow knew I'd need it all er contribution invaluable!

n the home front, I want to thank cky for understanding my drive to make this happen and for my absence during this project he has spent a considerable amount of time alone due to my researching but she has always been there with the best comfort food and welcomed encouragement lso, I can't forget my sweet dog, Nettie of course she's named after great-grandma and great aunt so their name stays in my mouth he interrupted me to play just when I needed a break and reminded me that life is also happening N W

I'd like to dedicate this book to all the Ziegelmeyer ancestors Words seem inadequate to e plain the pure oy you've found while looking for them! I thank them for continuing to guide me on this special journey This project has helped shape how I now see myself the researcher, the questioner, the flame keeper I now know from where I came and it has made all the difference

njoy the journey!

fred made a trip to Germany in to r of to collect his inheritance e month later, he married the love of his life, toinette Koschel, in Galveston, Tex s

Nettie was born at the beginning of the Civil War on May [illegible] in Galveston, Texas. Her father, Samuel Koschel was born in Breslau, Silesia, Prussia, and was a joiner (skilled carpenter) by trade. He immigrated to Galveston on October [illegible] from Bremen, Prussia, on the ship Brasilian. He is the earliest arrival to the USA in our family, including the Korff, Voigt families. They came two years later in [illegible]. He died of a major heart attack in Galveston when Nettie was only years old. Nettie's mother was Marie Dietrich but it's questionable if Dietrich is her maiden name as she had two other children with the Dietrich surname. No other information about Marie has been found. Samuel and Marie married in First Church [illegible] in the Lyceum, the oldest part of the present -day church in Galveston on June [illegible]. The Koschel family lived in the county of Bavaria for a couple of years before returning to Galveston.

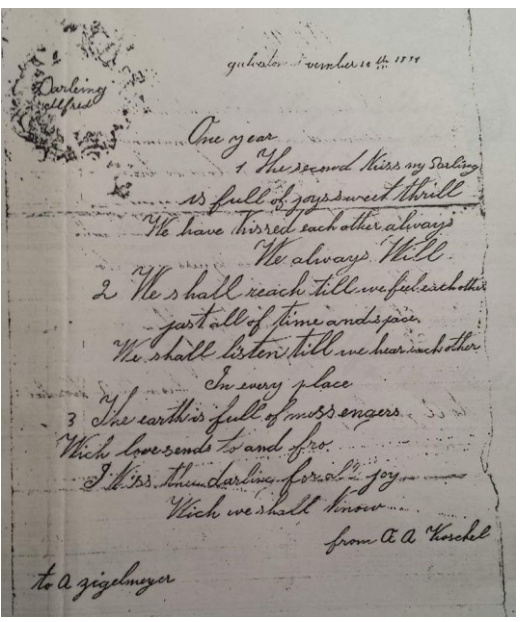
Nettie had a set of twin brothers, Adolph and Gustav, who were 2 years older. Samuel most likely divorced Mia or she died, then married Catherine Koch on July 2, 1877 in Harris County and had a daughter, Ida Ida da Marie, Nettie's half-sister. Samuel died 2 days before Ida was born. Catherine married Charles Krause five years after Samuel's death. Charles and Samuel knew each other and came over to the country on the same ship. Charles brought two children to the marriage so Ida and Nettie grew up with a step-brother and step-sister. No information has been found about the Koschel twin boys and what happened to them and why they didn't come to live in the Krause household. However, they were 12 years old when their mother married Charles Krause so they were probably on their own by then. The only family story we knew about Nettie until now was that she was adopted, so it was important to share here a more detailed account of her early life.

It is surmised that Nettie Koschel and Alfred Ziegelmeyer met when he and David Frisch traveled from Richmond to Galveston on business. Nettie was working for Levy and could have possibly met him there. Nettie wrote poetry for him in November of 1880 when their life-long love story began. She still had to learn how to spell her future last name.



Darling Alfred

Galveston November 11th 1880

One year
1 The second kiss my darling
Is full of joys sweet thrill
We have kissed each other always
We always will.
2 We shall reach till we feel each other
Just all of time and space
We shall listen till we hear each other
In every place
3 The earth is full of messengers
Which love sends to and fro
I'll kiss them darling for a joy
Which we shall know

Only Violets

1 Only Violets fragrant and blue
Crowned with pearls of morning dew
Telling of absent love so true
2 Only Violets gathered for you And yet my darling you can tell who Gathered these violets I guess now do
3 Then let the violets typical be
Of the love I bear for thee
Love and keep them just for me

Alfred Ziegelmeyer married Nettie on November 11, 1880, at First Church in Galveston, Texas, called the Lyceum. The church is still standing and is now attached to the Lyceum, the original church, at Galveston's First Lutheran Church. The couple returned to Richmond after their wedding. Alfred and Nettie had 8 children but only 7 survived per the 1900 census. From what is known, they had 7 children while living in Richmond. Alfred William (1881), Edward (1883), Julius Emmet (1885), Richard Harry Adolphus (1887), and Arthur Louis (1889). Note the repetitive family names here and throughout generations in the Ziegelmeyer family. The two girls, Edith and Nettie Marie, were born in Galveston.

[Special to The News.]

ROSENBERG, January 13.—The Santa Fe management is placing the railroad in excellent order, and substituting new, large steel rails in place of those lately in use. One noticeable feature of the work now being done is the large, heavy and durable fishbars that are being used in connecting the rails.

Yesterday was a delightful day, the bright sunshine and balmy air and singing of birds reminding one more of spring than winter months.

The postoffice will be ready for business on Thursday next. Mr. A. Ziegelmeyer will take charge as postmaster, and the citizens living in the county contiguous to Rosenberg will be saved the necessity of going to Richmond, some four or five miles out of their way, just for mail facilities.

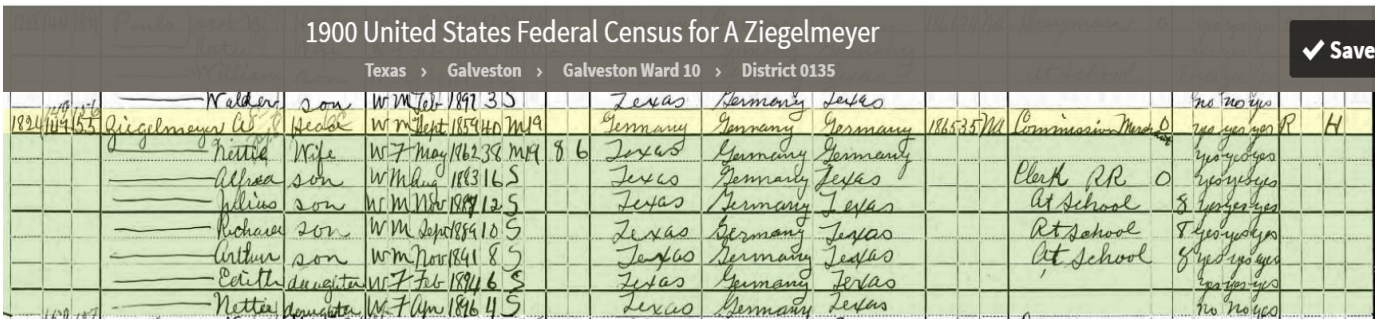
Three months and three days after the census was taken, the storm struck Galveston on September . Nettie and Alfred had six children, ages , , , , , and . Family lore has the family in a two-story house when the storm hit in the middle of the night. Richard Ziegelmeyer told a story about his grandmother, Nettie, that was no doubt passed down to him. The family was huddled upstairs, scared to death. The water was at the first story roof line. Nettie saw her hat floating by and someone ran out on the roof and grabbed it for her. She remarked that she might not have much left, but at least she had her hat! Per Richard Ziegelmeyer , r's bill, it says that the house they were living in on th and was destroyed during the storm. No information has been found that they ever lived on in or at any time, so it was most likely a mistake. They did live between th and th streets, just not on according to the Census, they were living at N . The present home is a two-story house, and the original home per historian Jami Parham is behind it and not destroyed .



From the Mitchell Historic Properties, with permission from Keisha Heck The island was riding the tide of prosperity that showed no signs of slowing when the worst recorded natural disaster ever to strike North America occurred on September . Poor communication and a lack of equipment to monitor storms resulted in a little warning for the residents of the Texas Gulf Coast. Few of Galveston's , residents evacuated the city before the bridges to the mainland fell.

The resulting storm surge, which reached a depth of feet in parts of the city, took the lives of an estimated to people in Galveston. High winds and high water destroyed one -third of the city including houses and acres of shoreline. Wind speeds reached approximately miles per hour (an estimate, since the anemometer was blown off the Weather Bureau building). Property damage was estimated to be between - million at that time. The force of the storm pushed buildings on the Gulf side into the center of the island, creating a spontaneous dam. Buildings and residents that survived the Great Storm did so because a wall of rubble -feet high shielded them from the worst waves.

Despite the horrific loss, islanders didn't delay in rebuilding the island and approved a plan to rebuild the city. In the succeeding years, Galvestonians witnessed the construction of a six -mile-long seawall, seventeen feet above low mean tide. The sand was pumped from the Gulf floor and flatcars to raise the grade throughout the city.

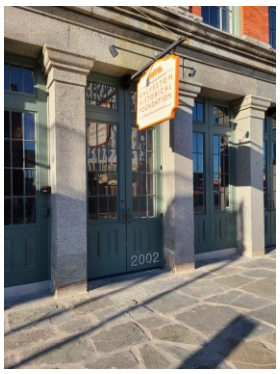
Behind the seawall, all structures, including offices, homes, and churches, had to be raised to this new elevation. During the eight year grade -raising, homes were jacked up some feet, and dredges poured four to six feet of sand beneath them, completing the city blocks.

Construction of the seawall and grade-raising were phenomenal feats of engineering and incredibly e pensive even by today's standards. The grade-raising cost Galveston taxpayers and individual homeowners million. The -mile seawall cost almost million in . Building the seawall took two years and saved the city from both the devastation of future hurricanes and from being a memory of Texas history. Galveston quickly gained notoriety across the country for the efficiency and determination it displayed while building the seawall. The engineering feat was noted as an example of how a city should respond after a disaster such as the hurricane. Lavish hotels and bathhouses were built along the waterfront making Galveston a playground for the wealthy and grand homes were built in Galveston's neighborhoods. The Strand and downtown Galveston were intact after the Storm but remained in disrepair until a renewed interest in the area began over thirty years ago.

The history of Galveston also reveals it as a cultural center of the state It was home to the first opera house in Tex s, The Grand pera ouse, which hosted numerous international stars Galveston also had the state first post office, naval b se, hospital, medical college, grocery store, gas lights, telephone, golf course, pub c library, daily newspaper, and Chamber of Commerce

In as Galveston was trying to recover from the effects of the hurricane, fred was the president of Ziegelmeyer Commission Co Inc , a wholesale produce and commission merchant busines located at rand thur sch alf -b other s listed as secretary -treasurer sure if this is a new b siness or a slight name change rand is still standing and is part of the famous nley w



fred had moved into a rented raised cottage at enue K The home owner was Professor mil indenberg, Galveston's foremost band leader of the s and s lfred years old at this time with all of his family living with him including his son, lius, and his wife, Carrie fred had continued success as a produce merchant lot of people might not like their entire family living with them, b t it is assumed that fred was happiest at that time in his life lost his mother at years old and left his father b ck in Germany, so no doub family was e tremely important to him very male in the family during the census had a job T he family living together might have b en ab ut family and tradition, b t it may have b en more ab ut necessity as many homes were destroyed during the torm and the grade raising of the remaining homes wasn't completed until , so homes w e tremely scarce

April Bulletin of Commercial Association Is Mailed to Members.

The April issue of the Treasure Island Log, official publication of the Galveston Commercial Association, has come from the hands of the printer and was mailed Tuesday to all of the members of the association. The eight pages of the magazine are filled with the accounts of the activities of the association during the month of March. In addition to the detailed reports of the doings of the Commercial Association there is an article by A. Ziegelmeyer of the Merchants' Association on the value of credit in promoting thrift and prosperity in the community.

MERCHANTS TO MAKE FEWER DELIVERIES

That all of the grocery stores, department stores and dry goods, clothing and shoe firms in Galveston will make a reduction in the number of deliveries on their routes is the opinion of A. Ziegelmeyer, secretary of the Galveston Merchants' Association. Fourteen firms agreed to make fewer deliveries, beginning Thursday, August 1. During the morning representatives of nine firms, including department stores, shoe stores, dry goods stores and clothing stores, discussed the matter at a meeting in the committee room of the Commercial Association. It was decided that each of these firms will make only one delivery a day. During the afternoon five grocers met at the same place and agreed to reduce the number of deliveries on their routes to two a day.

W. A. Johnson, president of the Merchants' Association, presided at both meetings. He said the commercial economy board of the national council of defense has asked the retail merchants of the nation to help win the war by practicing economy in their delivery service.

Secretary of the Merchants Association, Alfred was responsible for securing successful conventions in Galveston, giving encouraging speeches to fellow merchants which included traveling to other cities, writing articles on the value of credit, discussing loans given to buyers and collecting on those debts, credit rating and collections, and communicating with state officials concerning conventions. The Merchants Association swelled under Alfred's leadership so much so that they needed to move into a bigger building Cotton Exchange Building to hold their meetings. Alfred was also a member of the Texas Cotton Association and served on the reception committee.

Mr. Railey includes the following: June, 1920, water assessments, $21,586.35; taps and meter rents, $605.75; leads and sales, $628.85; waterworks deposit account, $106; sewer taps, $80. June, 1921, water assessments, $19,915.80; taps and meter rents, $412.75; leads and sales, $262.17; waterworks deposit account, $88; sewer taps, $145.

MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION MOVES TO NEW QUARTERS

The office of the Galveston Merchants' Association opened this morning in its new location, room 404, City National Bank building. Since the organization of the association a number of years ago, it has maintained offices on the third floor of the Cotton Exchange building, but, according to A. Ziegelmeyer, secretary of the association, because of the enormous recent growth of the membership and the necessity for a larger office force, the move to new quarters was necessitated.

"We now number among our members," said Mr. Ziegelmeyer yesterday as the last load of office equipment was moved from the old quarters, "every firm of importance in the city, and the smaller merchants, realizing the benefits to be derived from an association of this character, are rapidly falling in line. Of recent months, our ranks have been swelled by the enrollment of professional men in the city, and we are planning an intensive campaign to line up every commercial institution and merchant in Galveston before long. For some time we have realized that the bulk of business passing through the office was too great to be properly handled by the facilities at hand and the office force, but because of the lack of suitable quarters, we pegged along as best we could. Now, with more commodious accommodations available, we are going to enlarge our office force, increase our membership and endeavor to extend the scope of service to members.

TAX COLLECTIONS FOR JUNE APPROXIMATE $5,530.92

Tax collections for the month of June approximated $5,530.92, according to W. R. Willard, city tax collector and assessor. Of this amount $175.66 is the school tax and $5,355.26 is ad valorem tax.

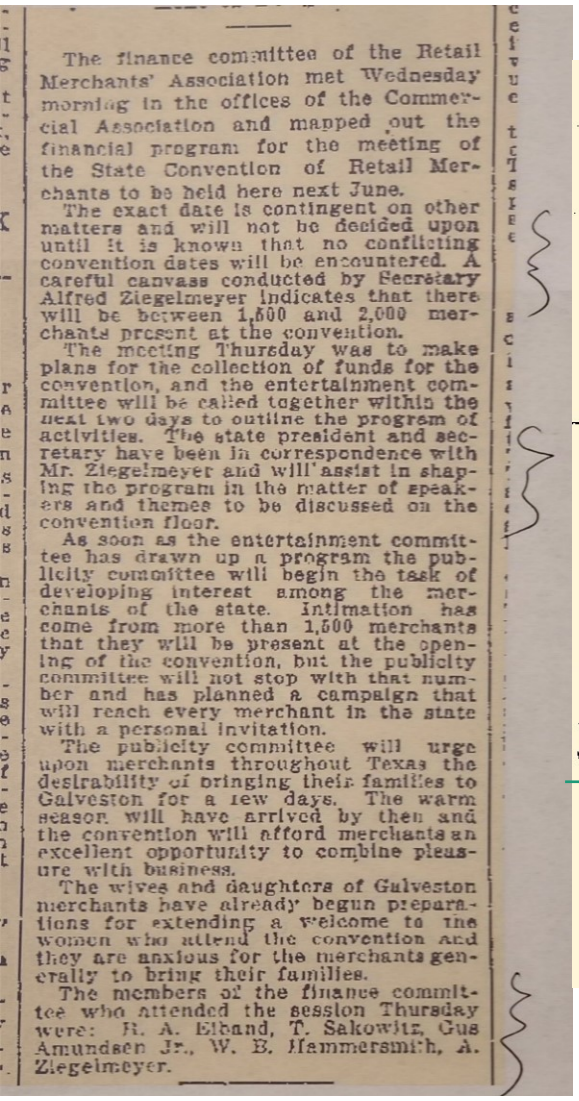
COTTON CONVENTION PROGRAM IS GIVEN

PLANS FOR ENTERTAINMENT ARE ANNOUNCED BY COMMITTEE.

Short, snappy business sessions, interesting addresses and lavish entertainment will feature the convention of the Texas Cotton Association, which will hold its regular annual session at the Hotel Galvez, beginning Friday, March 18, and lasting until Saturday night. Because of the general business depression and the fact that the cotton men are for the most part loose from business now, it is expected that the coming convention will be the largest in the history of the association. It was originally scheduled to be held in Havana, but plans were not carried out, and the committee in charge

lfred , a whip -smart usiness man astute in finances and accounting, was also a mer and secretary of the finance committee of the etail Merchants ssociation was responsile for the financial program of the tate Cotton Convention as well as partly responsile for hosting the National Cotton Convention at the otel Galve in Mch of



The finance committee of the Retail Merchants' Association met Wednesday morning in the offices of the Commercial Association and mapped out the financial program for the meeting of the State Convention of Retail Merchants to be held here next June.

The exact date is contingent on other matters and will not be decided upon until it is known that no conflicting convention dates will be encountered. A careful canvass conducted by Secretary Alfred Ziegelmeyer indicates that there will be between 1,500 and 2,000 merchants present at the convention.

The meeting Thursday was to make plans for the collection of funds for the convention, and the entertainment committee will be called together within the next two days to outline the program of activities. The state president and secretary have been in correspondence with Mr. Ziegelmeyer and will assist in shaping the program in the matter of speakers and themes to be discussed on the convention floor.

As soon as the entertainment committee has drawn up a program the publicity committee will begin the task of developing interest among the merchants of the state. Intimation has come from more than 1,500 merchants that they will be present at the opening of the convention, but the publicity committee will not stop with that number and has planned a campaign that will reach every merchant in the state with a personal invitation.

The publicity committee will urge upon merchants throughout Texas the desirability of bringing their families to Galveston for a few days. The warm season will have arrived by then and the convention will afford merchants an excellent opportunity to combine pleasure with business.

The wives and daughters of Galveston merchants have already begun preparations for extending a welcome to the women who attend the convention and they are anxious for the merchants generally to bring their families.

The members of the finance committee who attended the session Thursday were: R. A. Eiband, T. Sakowitz, Gus Amundsen Jr., W. B. Hammersmith, A. Ziegelmeyer.

Alfred Sr and his work on the finance committee of the Retail Merchants Association of the event. The association is now out of its swaddling clothes; it is entering upon a field of endeavor with a lusty youngster who is growing stronger with every passing day and is already a factor in the commercial activities of the city.

The banquet to be given Tuesday night is to be strictly an informal affair. It will be attended, from all reports, by over one hundred representative business men. They will partake of the best of viands while they listen to brief talks on subjects in which all are vitally interested. E. A. Hudson of Houston, president of the Houston Retail Merchants' Association, will be the principal speaker of the evening. The details of the banquet, which is to start at 8 o'clock, are in the hands of a committee composed of Gus Amundsen Jr., chairman; Albert Shafer, W. P. Hammersmith, Sam J. Williams and Fred W. Erhard.

A Strong Organization.

The Galveston Retail Merchants' Association, although but four years old, has traversed a rough and rocky road, and during the first year or so of its existance, the way was narrow and hard. During the past two years it has grown into a remarkably strong organization and its future seems assured. In the growth of the association, as well as in its establishment, Herman B. Meyer, president of the organization for the past three years, has played no small part. Mr. Meyer has proven a most efficient officer; he has labored long and faithfully for the association's success.

In this work he has been aided materially by an efficient corps of officers, a board of directors always awake to the importance of the association and a membership that was loyal. In W. P. Hammersmith, vice president, Mr. Meyer has had a most efficient co-worker. Sam Zander, treasurer of the association, has left nothing undone in the organization's behalf. A. Ziegelmeyer, secretary, has proven one of the association's most efficient officers.

The board of directors is composed of G. H. Wilder, J. A. Levine, W. A. Johnson, Julius Tussup, V. H. Davison, Albert Shafer, P. M. Gengler, G. H. Aronsfeld, Joseph Bonart, Gus Amundsen Jr., Sam J. Williams, Tobias Sakowitz, Ed Salzmann, J. K. Deats and the officers.

Over the Rough Places.

At the election of officers in January, 1909, the outlook was anything but roseate. Mr. Meyer consented to take the helm of the organization, Mr. Calkins continuing as secretary. The work of building up the membership was undertaken, with but negligent results. Still the work continued, and as the officers gained experience, results were more apparent along all lines. It was a hard year, but with the dawn of 1910 the association had weathered a most trying gale and emerged from the gloom triumphant. The success of the association was assured; results were being gotten on every hand; the membership increased and a band of loyal supporters kept up the good work.

In 1911 the association continued its healthy growth and its field of endeavor was broadened. The local association was affiliated with the state organization and with the national association. It was with regret to the entire membership that Mr. Calkins, who had served the association so faithfully as secretary, resigned his position to take up similar work at Jacksonville, Ala. He was succeeded by A. Ziegelmeyer. Under Mr. Ziegelmeyer's efforts a most efficient office has been built up, and the usefulness of the association's data further enhanced.

A Rating Bureau.

To those who are unfamiliar with the principal feature of the Retail Merchants' Association, perhaps the explanation, "rating bureau," is as explicit as any. The benefits of the bureau are many. In the first place, members of the association have access to the financial rating of individuals with whom they do business—on the same principle as commercial agencies are conducted with reference to business houses. They are surrounded with a measure of protection that is not only beneficial to themselves, but to the individual.

Once a credit is established by the individual with the Retail Merchants' Association, a valuable asset has accrued to him. He may not only transact accounts with members of that association in Galveston, but, through the association's affiliation with state and national organizations, he may go to distant cities

VETERAN OFFICIAL OF MERCHANTS DIES

A. ZIEGELMEYER, RESIDENT 37 YEARS, TO BE BURIED TODAY.

June-14-28

Funeral services for Alfred Ziegelmeyer Sr., aged 68, who has been secretary of the Galveston Merchants' Association for the past sixteen years, will be held this afternoon at 5 o'clock from the family residence, 2214 Avenue I. Mr. Ziegelmeyer died yesterday morning at his residence after an illness of several months. F. P. Malloy will have charge of the funeral.

Interment will be in the Episcopal Cemetery, with Rev. Victor Alter, pastor of the First Lutheran Church, officiating.

He has been a resident of Galveston for the past thirty-seven years, having come here from Richmond, Tex., where he was located for a number of years.

Mr. Ziegelmeyer came to this country from Breslau Silesia, Germany, where he was born in 1859, at the age of 3 and has resided in Texas ever since.

He was a member of a number of local orders and lodges, including the Carenkaway Tribe No. 15, Improved Order of Red Men, of which he held all of its offices, and also a number of state offices. He was a member of the Grand Fraternity.

He was also a member of the Winona Council No. 3, D. P. A., of the Improved Order of Red Men and a Prastorian.

Mr. Ziegelmeyer is survived by his wife, four sons, Alfred of Houston, Julius E. of Dallas and Richard H. and Arthur L. Ziegelmeyer of Galveston; two daughters, Mrs. W. C. Jones and Mrs. F. C. Grant, also of Galveston; one brother, Arthur Hirsh of Houston, and eight grandchildren.

Following are the pallbearers: William Grady Sr., W. B. Thacker, A. G. Hubbard, Leon Voigt, H. C. Benecke, W. H. Leslie, R. C. Mallitz and Frank Martin, active, and Dr. E. D. Chase, D. B. MacInerney, A. R. Wolfram, John Harrison, D. J. Curtain, R. L. Koehler, George Burgess, Dr. H. O. Sappington, V. L. Rion, J. Voigt, N. S. Niederman, H. A. Eiband, Dr. A. O. Singleton, Sam Zander, E. Arthur Hirsch

It would be a mistake not to include Alfred r's half-brother in our family genealogy as it appears Alfred and his brother were very close.

Arthur Hirsch was born in April 1870 in Richmond, Texas, to David Hirsch and Bertha Ziegelmeyer Hirsch Pettichord. Arthur was 2 when his mother died and 4 when his brother Max died. He grew up with his father and step-mother, Rosalie Hirsch.

Arthur traveled to Galveston and lived with Alfred for approximately 2 years (photo below from 1890) and worked as Alfred's clerk in the Ziegelmeyer & Co business. Arthur married Houston in 1894 and returned to Richmond for a few years. Lydia's brother, John Miram Baker, and formed the successful Baker and Hirsch Dry Goods store in Richmond until Arthur decided to branch out in a big way.

Arthur Hirsch

Arthur and Marvyn Hirsch

Around 1900 Arthur and Lydia moved to Houston where he was employed as a commercial salesman for the wholesale grocery business, bringing with him what he learned working with Alfred. For the last 15 years of his life, he was manager and supervisor of the Houston-based Gordon, Sewall and Company in Weimer, Brenham and Bryan.

Lydia and Arthur had two children, a daughter named Marvyn Sister (1895-1981) and a son, Arthur Maxwell (1900-1932). It is possible that Arthur Hirsch r's middle name, Maxwell, is a nod from Arthur to his youngest brother, Max, who died so young. And as the Ziegelmeyer family names tend to go, Alfred named his fourth and youngest son Arthur, no doubt after his half-brother.

Lydia seems to have been a strong woman. She spoke out publicly about women and how they were equal to men. She wanted women to claim their freedom and advancement in the world. She would have been considered a progressive woman in that time period. Lydia lost her son, two brothers and her husband within 7 years. She lived 21 years after Arthur's death.

All research about Arthur shows him to be a very genuine, smart, likable man. A Weimar newspaper reporter wrote a heart-felt tribute about him and seemed bereft at his passing. Arthur and Lydia must have been loving, memorable people to those who were fortunate enough to have known them. They are buried in the Forest Park Cemetery in Houston.

Mrs. Arthur Hirsch.

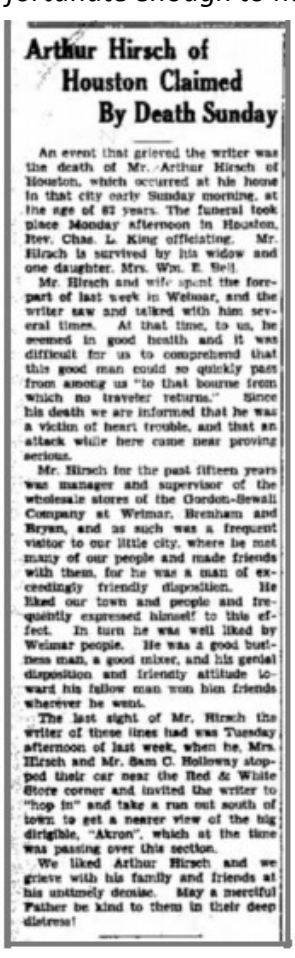
The force of the Better Babies show that will be held by the Texas Woman's Fair is much enhanced by Mrs. Arthur Hirsch, one of the committee in charge, and of which Mrs. R. E. Patterson is chairman. Mrs. Hirsch has two half-grown children who are good representatives of their mother's training.

Mrs. Hirsch loves the atmosphere of Houston, having been born and reared in Richmond, a neighboring town, and considers herself a thorough Houstonian.

"I am glad women are broadening out and doing things for their own advancement," declared the lady. "Women have been as smart as men all along, but the men are just now beginning to take notice of the fact. Intuition is more natural with women than men, and it is quicker than reasoning upon which men pride themselves."

And hence Mrs. Hirsch believes in an exclusive woman's fair, and its possibilities of bringing out woman's true powers. She thinks that so long as they have been trammeled by numerous restrictions, such as the joint fairs have more or less laid upon them, that they have not had the scope and freedom they need to bring out their part of the world's work. And she thinks this woman's fair will be the school of enlightenment concerning the whole catalogue of things that women do.

"I have been trying to boost up the baby show with out of town babies and think quite a number will be entered in the show," said this committeeman in referring to what she had been doing.



Arthur Hirsch of Houston Claimed By Death Sunday

An event that grieved the writer was the death of Mr. Arthur Hirsch of Houston, which occurred at his home in that city early Sunday morning, at the age of 62 years. The funeral took place Monday afternoon in Houston, Rev. Chas. L. King officiating. Mr. Hirsch is survived by his widow and one daughter, Mrs. Wm. E. Bell.

Mr. Hirsch and wife spent the forepart of last week in Weimar, and the writer saw and talked with him several times. At that time, to us, he seemed in good health and it was difficult for us to comprehend that this good man could so quickly pass from among us "to that bourne from which no traveler returns." Since his death we are informed that he was a victim of heart trouble, and that an attack while here came near proving serious.

Mr. Hirsch for the past fifteen years was manager and supervisor of the wholesale stores of the Gordon-Sewall Company at Weimar, Brenham and Bryan, and as such was a frequent visitor to our little city, where he met many of our people and made friends with them, for he was a man of exceedingly friendly disposition. He liked our town and people and frequently expressed himself to this effect. In turn he was well liked by Weimar people. He was a good business man, a good mixer, and his genial disposition and friendly attitude toward his fellow man won him friends wherever he went.

The last sight of Mr. Hirsch the writer of these lines had was Tuesday afternoon of last week, when he, Mrs. Hirsch and Mr. Sam C. Holloway stopped their car near the Red & White Store corner and invited the writer to "hop in" and take a run out south of town to get a nearer view of the big dirigible, "Akron", which at the time was passing over this section.

We liked Arthur Hirsch and we grieve with his family and friends at his untimely demise. May a merciful Father be kind to them in their deep distress!

by T. E. Lyons from William Monnig. This game was hotly contested for several hours. Mr. Lyons withdrew his king and caused Monnig to lead out his pawns. These were taken until when Lyons made his attack the loss of the pawns resulted in a defeat for Monnig.

The longest game was between Ziegelmeyer and Lyons. It was a "Ruy" Lopez, in which the Galveston player led such a well organized attack Mr. Lyons was only able to make the game a draw by the most skillful playing.

Mr. Lyons has played one draw game at each of the last three contests and President Ziegelmeyer of Galveston Decides for Houston.

Houston is to have the next State chess tournament, beginning on July 4. A. Ziegelmeyer of Galveston, president of the Texas Chess association, has issued a call for the next annual meeting and tournament to be held at Houston, beginning July 4 at 10 a. m. and continuing three days.

A number of towns were bidders for this meeting, but Houston offering the best inducements was awarded the honor of entertaining the State association.

O. O. Ballard, president of the local chess club, has appointed J. E. Walton, F. L. Guy and J. L. Worsham a committee to complete arrangements and entertain the visiting players.

A special meeting of the Houston Chess club will be held Tuesday at 8 o'clock p. m. at the club room, 1104½ Texas avenue.

Dictionaries of phrases and codewords or cipher components were commonly used in the age of telegraphy to compress messages and thereby economize on wire costs, and to achieve some secrecy for communications.

There were different kinds of codes, different arrangements of phrase matter, different means of assembling and dis-assembling messages. Typically, a sender would choose from the dictionary's selections those phrases or expressions (about the quality of cotton, for example) that satisfied his intentions, and take the codewords associated with the selections. It is the coded message, packaged for transport, that would be processed and sent along its way by the telegraph or cable company. The recipient of the message would unpack its original meanings by looking the code words up in another copy of the same dictionary — they were listed in alphabetical order — or by following a sequence of other procedures to arrive at the meaning.

Thousands of codes were published or issued privately, but they are largely forgotten now. They present a finely-grained window into their respective domains and their time. And they provide instances of sometimes stunning visual, technical, lexicographic and unwitting poetic achievement.

Dallas Navigator Missing in Action

Lieut. Julius E. Ziegelmeyer Jr., navigator on a Flying Fortress and stationed in England, has been missing in action since June 22, according to a telegram received by his wife, Mrs. Mildred Wilson Ziegelmeyer.

Lieutenant Ziegelmeyer is a graduate of Sunset High School, and was a law student at the University of Texas and a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. He enlisted in the service Jan. 15, 1942, and received his wings and commission at Hondo Thanksgiving Day. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ziegelmeyer, 1046 North Edgefield, and a brother of Mrs. Penelope Eades.

J. E. ZIEGELMEYER

The election of J. Scobey North as president of the Huey & Philp Hardware Company was announced by the directors Saturday. Mr. North, who has been connected with the company since 1906, assumes the position vacated by the recent death of George A. Trumbull, who had been head of the company since 1911.

Paul H. Speaker and J. E. Ziegelmeyer were named vice presidents. Mr. Speaker, who became manager of the retail department in 1909, will have charge of purchases and sales. Mr. Ziegelmeyer, who has served the company since 1918, will have charge of finances and collections. A. V. Lane, treasurer of the company for many years, was re-elected.

Following the liquidation of its retail hardware business, the company will confine its activities to operation of its wholesale hardware department, hotel and restaurant supply department and builders hardware and industrial supplies.

Heart Party.

An enjoyable social affair of the week was a heart party given Friday evening by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ziegelmeyer, 3807 Avenue R. Fifty guests were present, and they participated in the principal amusement of the evening, progressive hearts, with a livelipess that sent time flying.

The surprise of the evening came when refreshments were served. Carefully hidden in each napkin was a card reading: "Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Benecke announce the engagement of their daughter, Hazel Zelma, to Mr. Arthur Louis Ziegelmeyer." This unexpected news was received with a happy outburst of congratulations that added to the pleasure of the occasion.

The young people present spent a delightful evening, made possible by the unexcelled entertaining talent of the host and hostess.

The surprise engagement of Arthur Sr to Hazel Benecke was announced during a game }(, Œš•U P]À v Ç :µo]µ• ^ŒU ŒšZ

Ziegelmeyer-Benecke.

A very pretty home wedding occurred at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Benecke Wednesday, when Miss Hazel Benecke became the wife of Mr. Arthur Louis Ziegelmeyer.

The parlor was decorated for the marriage with an artistic grouping of ferns and palms and golden-eyed marguerites. The improvised altar was fashioned of white crepe paper in bell shape covered with marguerites.

A white satin pillow, lace covered, directly under the bell, was placed for the young couple that they might kneel to receive the blessing. Rev. Dr. C. S. Aves performed the marriage ceremony.

The bride was a picture of girlish loveliness in her bridal robe of white crepe de chine and lace. Her bridal veil was put on, in Normandy cap effect, and confined with orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of white carnations and ferns.

The maid of honor, Miss Nettie Ziegelmeyer, wore pink crepe de chine, combined with lace and she carried pink carnations.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Louis Benecke as best man.

After the ceremony an elaborately decorated angel food's cake made by the bride and placed in three-tier effect and surmounted by a miniature bride and groom was cut by the invited guests.

Mrs. Benecke, mother of the bride, wore a white lingerie with sash of arrow blue Persian silk made tango style. The bride and bridegroom went to Fredericksburg for a month's stay.

The bride's going away gown was of Copenhagen blue silk poplin made in coat effect. With this was worn a Dresden chiffon waist carrying the same tones. The hat was a chic model in Etrusban straw with miniature roses in the pastel shades.

DIOCESAN PRESIDENT

Mrs. Arthur L. Ziegelmeyer, pictured above, will preside at the annual diocesan assembly of the Daughters of the King, to be held Monday, January 23, at 3 p.m. in the parish house of Christ Church. Mrs. Ziegelmeyer, who comes over from Galveston, is diocesan president. Members and interested friends are invited.

Arthur Sr and mother, Nettie

The Census shows Arthur working as a clerk for a steamship company, but most of his career was in cotton, so this steamship company undoubtedly shipped cotton. Arthur worked in the Cotton Exchange building in Galveston. There, the building was used to address pricing disputes between buyers and sellers, to establish fair trade principles, and to collect and disseminate information concerning the crop and market conditions. Arthur is found again in the years -old working in Galveston as the office manager at a cotton export warehouse. It is assumed he worked a few more years as most people retired around that time.

south to govern rob, plunder and intimidate the southern white man. He paid particular respects to Daughtery, Hayes, Mellon and others. He said that Hoover could not possibly have been a member of the cabinet without smelling the rottenness on all sides of him. Getting nearer home he took a rap at Love, Colquitt and Collins, classifying them as bolters who were using prohibition as a screen to hide their intolerant views.

During the address of Mr. Collins someone in the audience asked Collins about Jefferson Davis being thrown into prison. Collins replied that Davis was never in prison. King took him severely to task on this point, declaring that Davis spent two years in prison, was shackled by General Miles, refused a writ of habeas corpus and only freed when the case was taken up by a Tammany attorney, who with others signed his bond of $100,000.

Senator Collins made a brief rejoinder which was punctuated with heckling from the crowd. He said he was justified in bolting the party by the acts of Jefferson Davis and John H. Reagan, and declared that there were Quakers in the army but did not specify a case.

All the democratic nominees in Polk county appeared on the platform during the rally and told King they were going to support the ticket "from top to bottom."

In addition to scores attending from nearby points, the following Beaumonters were present at the meeting:

Dave Warfield, A. B. Seale, Mr. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Serio, Mrs. A. Cuchia, Mrs. Antoinette Cuchia, A. M. Huffman, T. C. Riggs, Jim Keith, John Vest, Joe Bordages, Orden Johnsen, T. S. Yawn, Ben S. Woodhead, A. D. Lipscomb, Gene Ligon, Andrew J. Kaulbach, George Acklt, Ludlow Calhoun, Chas. Ligon, and R. S. Write.

Galveston Cotton Expert Will Open Beaumont Offices

N. Estrada of Galveston, cotton exporter, will open offices in Beaumont at once according to A. L. Ziegelmeyer who represented Estrada in completing arrangements here today. There is a shipment of cotton now en route here for the account of this company.

Zeigelmeyer spent Monday in Beaumont in conference with Roland Jones, Jr., superintendent of the Beaumont cotton compress and with port and chamber of commerce officials. The location of the company's offices is not yet decided. Zeigelmeyer could not say Monday who would be in charge of the local offices.

The opening of Estrada's office here will make four cotton buyers and shippers now operating in Beaumont. All four have opened offices here within the last year.

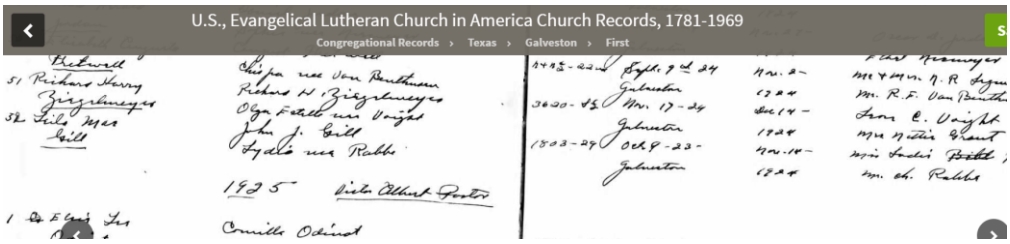
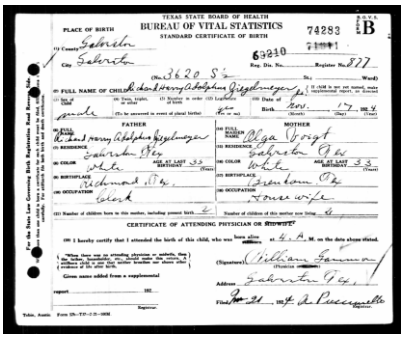
ddy is the son of ichard Ziegelmeyer and lga Voigt was born on Novembr in Galveston, Tes His godparents were his aunt, Nettie Ziegelmeyer Grant, and his uncle, on Voigt ddy never spoke about his grandfather, fred because fred died when he was years old really didn't speak about his grandmother, Nettie, but he did live with her for years from years old and at another time in ouston I didn't get into genealogy until late in my life so I regret terribly not asking him about her





uddy loved to hunt and fish and Galveston offered him, in his words, an island paradise e and his b friend, ddy pence, met in Galveston when they were years old and lived a lifetime together as ost friends They ran the city streets and the sands on West each, disappearing Friday after school and wouldn't come home until unday evening is father gave him a ong ifle and he and uddy shoot rds and squirrels and roast them over an open fire on the each had all the freedom a oy could wish for e told me when he was about that he'd throw out his cast net and catch a wa ful of Gulf shrimp that he peddled door -to-door for pound said his pockets were so full of nickels y the time he reached the other end of his ock that he had a hard time keeping his pants up said he thought he was C uddy was a fi er e could pull a car engine or air conditioner apart and put it back together witho hitch me with clocks and fishing reels always said he had to know how things worked s curiosity about everything stayed with him throughout his life and served him well ring WW II, ddy enlisted in the my as a teenager on ecembr was tested and sent to radio school in u Falls, uth akota was tested again and was told he was going to pilot school in M arfa, Te as, which shocked him because he just wanted to be an infantry man that's what he gets for eing so smart elled as a pilot t had a healthy dose of respect ear about flying an older man, he told me he couldn't believe the government trusted him and all those very young men to fly airplanes received training in single engine prop planes and moved on to C and signed up to go overseas t was asked if he wanted to fly VIPs and cargo thought that would e a great jo and took it

ddy took acquired leave and he and a pal went to s ngeles, California, for a little y mother, cille ovland was working at M Studios r girlfriends were going out to the Palladium allroom but my mother didn't have a dress er friend loaned her one and that is how she met my father that night I guess the two were taken with each other ecause they met the ne night as well Two weeks later, cille flew down to uston to meet ie and k cille said she went to the church to meet ie and thought it was decorated eautifully ie told her that she was glad she liked it since she was getting married the ne day cille never got the g white wedding We children this story when they told us, but it's true! When we gave them a surprise th wedding anniversary party, we finally made him propose to her They married on arch at Grace utheran Church in uston with his parents in attendance soon as ddy could get out of the service tober he did said it had interfered with his hunting and fishing, plus he was starting a family

fter the war, uddy signed on with Company in Te s City uddy worked as a general lab technician until he caught the attention of chief chemical engineer, Cy M yron Cy appreciated uddy's work ethic and curiosity in the lab so he asked uddy to join him and be his lab assistant uddy had no e perience to speak of when he started as a general lab tech but his need to know how things work mad him a natural and Cy worked together on creating the first gas chromatograph at Cy was transferred to Illinois and begged uddy to come with him but he wouldn't go or didn't want to upend his family

uddy was working in the lab on the fateful day of the Te s City e plosion, pril the worst man-made disaster in history e was probably more ama ed than anything that he didn't die that as he retold this event several times throughout his life I had just set up testing and had wiped down my area I thought I'd take a smoke break while the test was running While in the hallway talking to others, I heard something go ZZZ ZZZZZ WWW! nd I felt the ground vibrate Then the blast happ The lab had one solid wall of glass windows and a coat closet directly opposite and behind my area fter I picked myself up off the floor, I looked through the lab door and every window had been blown out and huge shards of glass were sticking out of the coat closet We thought a bomb had gone off d I been in the lab at that moment, I would have been shredded to pieces uddy was asked that day to help doctors get critical medical equipment and supplies from a local pharmacy

lot of changes had taken place at throughout the years and they became much stricter e day, uddy left the lab to smoke and tell a joke e was told by a new supervisor that he didn't have permission to take a break That was just wrong to him because he had always given his best and the fact he was an adult and couldn't take a break when he needed to just didn't sit right with him, so, after years he quit on the spot uddy walked through the door at home in the middle of the day and surprised ucille e told her what happened and that he quit They still had three children at home e looked at him and calmly said, k, now what e told her that he heard about car painting classes at College of the nland and thought he might try his hand at that and possibly create his own siness was years old representatives called uddy and asked him to come back but he was done uddy loved what he learned in those classes went into immediate action and poured a concrete slab for a double car garage in the backyard e enlisted help from his friend, acy arney arnett, and together they bu garage, complete with a painting room and e haust fans The neighbors put up with large, loud air compressors and acrid paint fumes for a few years until he found a place in town and arney went in business together, calling it Z Paint and ody hop When ubba returned from Viet Nam, he w into siness with his father and arney left uddy and ob were known around town for helping people out so they never had to advertise since word of mouth was all the advertisement the shop needed uddy absolutely loved taking a wrecked vehicle and making it beautiful again ubba and uddy worked together for years until uddy retired in t years old ob continued the siness until the mid- when it was dissolved after working in the paint and body siness for close to years

uddy enjoyed retirement immensely and spent his days at his beloved fishing camp in Matagorda with friends and family, fishing ickinson ayou with his good friend, Gut, and fishing till his heart's content in Galveston ay family gatherings, he was always in high demand as an unparalleled joke teller storyteller uddy was a man's man who loved nothing more than to entertain e left an indelible mark on this world and on his family

uddy died at from heart failure at ila's home in Webster, Te as, on February , ectly years to the day his own father died cille died at in her Te s City home from a benign brain tumor on ne ddy and cille were buried together in the spring of at the uston National Veterans Cemetery with all the pomp and circumstance one warrants from being a force veteran

RECEIVES PILOT'S WINGS—Richard H. Ziegelmeyer Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Ziegelmeyer, formerly of Galveston, received his pilot's wings in the aircorps at Marfa and was appointed flight officer. He was born and reared in Galveston and graduated from Ball High School in 1941. He is now stationed at the Kingman, Ariz., army airfield, after spending a short leave here and in Houston, where his parents now reside.

Richard H. Ziegelmeyer Jr.

TEXAS CITY — Richard Harry Ziegelmeyer Jr., 86, departed this life on Saturday morning, February 5, 2011, surrounded by his family. A memorial service will be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, February 10, at Emken-Linton Funeral Home in Texas City with Pastor Doug Mc Brayer officiating. Visitation will begin at 6:00 p.m.

Richard "Buddy" was born in Galveston, Texas, on November 17, 1924, the son of Olga and Richard H. Ziegelmeyer Sr. He worked as a lab technician at Amoco Oil for 20 years before starting B & Z Paint and Body Shop in Texas City. Anyone who knew Buddy knew he was an avid fisherman and owned a camp in Matagorda Bay. He delighted in teaching grandkids and friends the "art" of fishing. He liked to be creative and designed and used many of his own fishing lures.

"Pee Paw", as he was known to many, was a wonderful and humorous man. A staunch family man, he enjoyed nothing better than family gatherings and playing games. He loved reminiscing about his boyhood adventures on the island and songs he sang during the war. Buddy resided in Texas City most of his life. He was very patriotic and served his country during World War II as an Air Force Pilot flying B-17's and C46's. He was discharged from the Air Force in 1945 and married Lucille Hovland of Minneapolis, Minnesota after a two-week love affair that lasted 58 years. Together they had five children.

He is survived by two daughters, Lila Muzik of Webster, Texas, and Lori Ziegelmeyer-Becky Ledolph of Pasadena, Texas; brother-in-law Marvin Burris Davis of Texas City; four grandchildren, Laurette Muzik of Pasadena, Texas, Lenzie Ferguson (Bonnie) of Gunter, Texas, Donna Yarborough (Troy) of Santa Fe, Texas, Richard Ziegelmeyer IV of Santa Fe, Texas; four great grandchildren, Anthony Knight, Alexis Ferguson and Lane Ferguson all of Gunter, Texas, Chase Yarborough of Santa Fe, Texas, and various nieces and nephews. He is preceded in death by his sister, Gloria Davis, wife Lucille, son Richard "Bubba", daughter LuAnn Ferguson and infant daughter Dale.

Buddy was a man's man and forged friendships with many people with whom he shared stories and many fishing trips. He was a master storyteller/jokester and was in high demand at parties and family gatherings. However, his closest friendship was with Buddy Spence (Arnice) of Jacinto City, Texas. The two met in Galveston when they were 8 years old and were lifelong best friends.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be sent to Disabled American Veterans, P.O. Box 14301, Cincinnati, OH 45250-0301, Attn: Gift Processing.

EMKEN-LINTON

LUCILLE B. ZIEGELMEYER

Lucille B. Ziegelmeyer, 82, of Texas City, passed away Tuesday morning, June 3, 2003 at home surrounded by her family.

A memorial service will be held at 1:00 p.m. Friday, June 6, 2003, at Emken-Linton Funeral Home with Pastor Doug Mc Brayer officiating.

Lucille was born May 15, 1921, in Columbia Heights, Minnesota, the daughter of Peter and Hildegard Hovland. She devoted her life to her family and husband and had many wonderful friends. She resided in Texas City for over 46 years and worked for the United States Government Census Bureau for 11 years.

She was preceded in death by her son Richard "Bubba" Ziegelmeyer, III of Texas City and infant daughter, Dale Ann Ziegelmeyer.

Lucille is survived by her husband of 58 years, Richard "Buddy" Ziegelmeyer, Jr. of Texas City; three daughters, Lila Muzik of Webster, TX, LuAnn Ferguson of Santa Fe, TX, Lori Ziegelmeyer of Pasadena, TX; a brother-in-law, Marvin Burris Davis of Texas City: four grandchildren, Laurette Muzik of Webster, TX, Louis Ferguson of Arlington, TX, Donna Yarbrough of Santa Fe, TX, Richard Ziegelmeyer IV of Texas City, TX; three great-grandchildren, Anthony Knight and Alexis Ferguson of Arlington, TX, and Chase Yarbrough of Santa Fe, TX, and various nieces and nephews.

Life's journeys are enriched by best friends. Arnice and Buddy Spence and family from Jacinto City, TX, have been honorary family members for 58 years. We love you.

The family would like to extend a public thank you to Lisa LeBlanc from Hospice Care Team for all of her support and guidance and a special thank you to Laurette for taking care of Lucille for the past five months. Her unwavering devotion and love for her grandmother and family is deeply appreciated.

In lieu of flowers donations may be sent to Disabled American Veterans P.O. Box 143011 Cincinnati, OH 45250-0301 or to the Salvation Army.

ubba was uddy and ucille's second child e was born in Galveston, Te as, on anuary , was a pre-mature b months and was put in an incubator with oxygen. ucille always marveled that he didn't turn out blind he said he was so small that he could fit in a women's si e shoe bo was a very sweet child with a kind heart according to ucille loved nothing more than to go find frogs, horny toads, snakes and lizards and bring them home could nurse any hurt creature back to health also loved to hunt and fish me of his favorite times were hunting for ducks with other family members and friends could make a mean duck dish on Christmas that everyone enjoyed.

ubba ran into trouble as a teen e wasn't a bad kid, he just thought some things were fun and all about having fun. Throughout his education, his teachers would comment on how bright ob was but that he wanted to be the class clown and that distracted him from being a model student. dropped out of high school without any plans for the future. It was decided that he needed to get his G and serve in the Vietnam War In the Navy, he tested e tremely high but he met other wayward souls so his life didn't improve much. ob began what would become a lifetime of addictive behaviors, but what gave ob a skill and some life direction was uddy's paint and body shop There, ubba became an e cellent body m and was able to make some good money for his growing family. ob married Connie Wood on November , after meeting in . Connie brought a daughter, anna Franklin, to the marriage. They divorced years later, but together they had a son and without surprise, named him ichard arry IV. is the only ichard in the family line that uses his given name without using a nickname.

ob worked with his father for years before inheriting the business after addy retired, then adding an additional years on his own as a business owner ubba was known around Te as City as one of th nicest people anyone ever met e could tell some wickedly funny jokes e would give anyone what ev he had, especially to those down on their luck and, like his father, he never met a stranger.

ob loved music and liked to entertain the family with his guitar. left behind many notes of beloved scribed poetry and prose.

ubba died at in Matagorda, Te as, at his father's fishing camp on une , ver attended his funeral a true testament to how many people knew and dearly loved him. this time his son, ichard IV, has his ashes.

Marvin Burris Davis Jr remembers Nettie (his great -grandmother)

During WWII, my mother, Gloria, and I lived with Edie and Dick and Nettie also lived with them She was in a wheelchair I remember being told I stepped on her feet a lot as a young child and she would playfully chase me away I was almost years old when she died

We have a quilt Nettie pieced together and my paternal grandmother, Meme Davis, quilted it and gave it to us for a wedding present Susie, my wife, added the quilt label

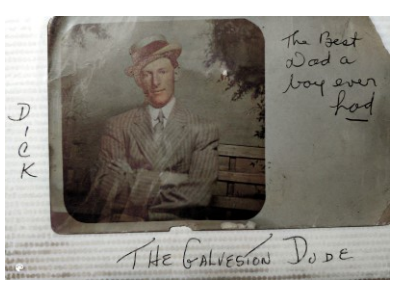
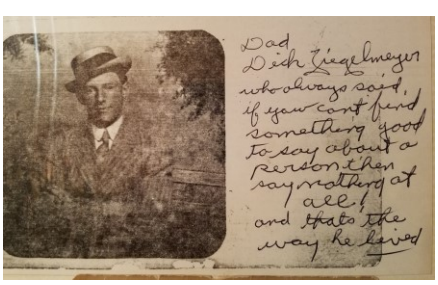
My father recalled being a teenager and asked to borrow the family car to go on a date Dick told him it would be fine, but not to drive on the beach and to stay off of the pilings Sure enough, my father drove on the beach and onto the pilings, balancing the car on the oil pan He said he timidly stepped into the house he was so scared! and Dick was sitting there, reading the newspaper He told his father what happened and he said ick folded the paper, stood up and said, et's go nd take that girl home, now My fa said it made quite an impression on him that his father didn't get real mad and punish him for that stunt

My father basically worshipped his father My father wrote on a picture of his father, The best dad a boy ever had is favorite saying of his father's was, If you can't find something good to say about a person then say nothing at all e said his father lived by that philosophy





When a semi-pro baseball team came to town, ick asked the catcher if my dad could pitch to him and said he could hear the ball go P P! in the catcher's mitt because he threw so hard fterwards the catcher ick, This kid is really talented! My father said he could see his father swell with pride ick would many long hours teaching him how to play

My father said he was so happy the day ick gave him a long rifle when he was about addy loved to be outside and would tell stories about shooting squirrels and doves with that gun said his uncle scar utch Voigt even hired him to shoot pigeons out of the trees at the ollywood inner Club so they wouldn't poop on important guests

addy could also be a mischievous boy the day ick was hosting a card game with a bunch of distinguished men at his house My father told me he got a long rope and tied one end to the table leg then weaved the rope in and around each man's chair legs ne man tried to stand up and almost fell over addy laughed so hard! Needless to say, my father remembers this as one of the few times he got a whipping from his father

My father remembered his parents feeding the hobos in ouston They would come to the back door which was marked by the hobs to let others know they could get fed there lie and ick felt fortunate to be working and would share with those who had less than they did

ick was generous and always well -dressed would take the family to get ice cream on aturdays when they were visiting bought fireworks for the kids for the th of uly would take the family for unday lunch after church either to Gaidos in Galveston or immie Walkers in Kemah for a good seafood dinner

When I lived in Galveston or years old, ick took me to the Turf Grill on aturday and sat me at the counter, ordered me a shake or malt and asked the waitress to keep an eye on me ick would go through a door in the back and stay about minutes or so and then come back and they would leave found out later he was pulling tips, a form of gambling llie's brother, scar Voigt, was part owner of the Turf Grill with the Liteo family

ick was always well -dressed and ready for a hug When you visited, you found him in his chair with a table next to him with his pipe and things he needed to use it on the table usually he was smoking his pipe We are lucky to have that table though no pipes are there now was quiet but mainly because lie was doing the talking

ick was such a sweet man When da and I went to stay at their house in the summer, he would take us to work with him in downtown ouston would let us take the bus and go shopping mainly at the Cent store We ate lunch with him and then we would go home in the afternoon We felt so important nce when our family stayed with them on the weekend in ouston, I forgot my dog and blanket that I slept with but ten minutes after we got home to Tes City, here came ick with my dog and blanket said he knew I would not sleep well without it ch a sweet man I will never forget that!

llie and ick went to church with us ick would go get donuts and drop some off at the Ziegelmeyer's house and then bring some to our house e would go pick up la, nn, ob, and ri for unday chool then we all went to church fter church sometimes he would take us to get ice cream while Mama was getting lunch ready

This picture has always made the family snicker as everyone was deep in prayer, but Ollie was looking at the photographer

When llie and ick lived in Te as City, ick was still driving but couldn't see very well Thankfully, they didn't live but a few blocks away from our house e drove very slow, and llie would tell him when to turn M iracle they didn't have a wreck

Clyde Sutton remembers Dick and Ollie (his grandparents -in-law)

I never had living grandparents of my own ce I met llie and ick, they treated me as if they were my grandparents The first time I ate unday lunch at the avis house when were engaged, I sat ne to llie had on shorts and the first thing she said to me was, ook at the si e of those legs!

ne memory that sticks in my mind was going to church with the avis family ick could hardly see at this point and side-shuffled down the pew row When he got far enough, she'd say, Whoaaaaa!

I remember Charlie Costa playing tricks on llie ne of my favorite memories was Charlie putting church silverware in her purse at pot luck dinners Charlie would then tell pastor to stop her at the door and tell him to search her purse because he saw her take silverware all night and put it in her purse llie would open her purse and say, No I didn't, but there it would be he'd get mad at him and walk off

I remember the story about ick and our first dog Vicki and I really wanted a dog when we moved into my mother's garage apartment We found one advertised as part eagle so we went to look at her he look like a eagle at all she was solid white and she was full grown, but how could we turn her down we came home with her and took her over to Gloria and urris's house and llie and ick were there I think we paid for her ick took one look at the dog and said, ou paid for that dog ! the cutest or smartest dog but we loved her and always laugh about ick's comment

o strange now, but not then, my grandparents wanted to be called llie and ick While this may so irreverent to the reader, that's who my grandparents were to me, llie and ick I remember ick as a quiet, gentle, even-tempered man never got cross with any of us that I remember until one day on a vacation in New aunfels much fun, those vacations with the avis clan, but one day I crossed the line with ick For the life of me, I cannot remember what I said or did just remembered that he came to me and said, ila, I'm so disappointed in you I think I might have lost consciousness for a minute No spa or yelling could have possibly given me a gut punch like those words did What kind of a bad seed was I to make this quiet, gentle, sweet man say that he was disappointed in me always loved him so much because he was such a kind gentleman was crushed To this day, I thank him for helping me understand that I should always show respect to those who show respect to me and cherish those people and that good will ick always picked us up for unday school and church at Memorial utheran Church in Te as City We never missed a unday It was a constant in my life that I look back on and reali how much stability and faith that gave me

nother touching memory of ick is he gave the most wonderful horsy rides to us kids which consisted o him crossing his leg and letting us ride his foot The horsy rides were in cadence to this song -poem I asked my M a for fifty cents To see the elephant jump the fence e jumped so high he touched the sky nd did come ack til the Fourth of uly Then what followed was what I can only think of as a chorus of German sounding words that delighted us little kids as it seemed to e some magical words that went like this egith egith , Theegith, Thiigith, Thoogith, Thuugith We were thrilled with the chorus because we thought we could speak another language e would often pause after the first egith and wait for us to demand the great finish

M y daughter, aurette, remembers playing oll the ubber Tire shtray on the floor with him for hou a time would never tire and she would always laugh and enjoy the game aurette has and still cherishes that ruber tire ashtray

Thank you, ick, for everything you gave me ding love, respect for others, love of church and of course the horsy rides will always remember you with love, honor and respect

Lori Ziegelmeyer remembers Dick (her grandfather)

I agree with ila that calling our grandparents by their first names was a bit odd, but not to us It's what the wanted and it kind of set us apart from the standard grandma-grandpa names

eing the baby of the family, I spent less time with them and probably don't remember as much, but I do remember that ick was very quiet and e emely sweet So, if ick would get e asperated with llie, I remember him saying, For garden seed, lga!

ick had a tomcat that stayed outside t dusk, he'd open the front door and the cat would come in e' walk shuffle the cat through the house to the garage to eat, making clicking sounds with his mouth to which the cat would respond with meows ecause I only remember ick and llie as older, I remember him shaking and trying to eat peas My e one would reach his mouth after scooping up a forkful from his plate I'd try to help him but he'd always refuse It'd take him close to an hour to eat everything, but he did

y earliest memories of ick was his 8 beautiful car lue and white, if I remember correctly The steering wheel was enormous and he'd turn it very slowly I'd watch his hands move in short slides around the ottom of the wheel as he turned thought this was strange as my father drove with such confidence ick would always ing us donuts on unday mornings Without fail, he would wear a white shirt and slacks with a hat ie and suit coat for church had a handkerchief in his shirt or suit pocket that had an embroidered on it

ne memory stands out in particular for me about ick M om took me over to llie and ick's when I wa about years old so she could take llie grocery shopping M m told me it was my job to watch ick and make sure he didn't burn the house down while lighting his pipes ick used to scratch big wooden matches under his pipe table to light his pipe then he'd hold it toward my face and I'd be thrilled to blow it out Now he couldn't get up the speed needed to light the match, so I got to do that part too, and I was thrilled I could take care of him in that way I would hold the match over his pipe as he puffed, then I'd blow the match out and he would smile also took him for a walk shuffle down the sidewalk from the house to the street and ack while I held his hand That was his e ercise was very diligent in my responsi ities with him have his pipe and pipe stand which I treasure It always ings ack that memory for me uddy loved to tell the story about how his teachers wouldn't believe him when he told them that his obsessively clean mother would throw his homework away. To remedy the situation, uddy would punch a hole in his papers, get a string, and tie his homework to the table leg. This is the same woman who would make your bed if you went to the bathroom or clean your dinner plate if you got up from the table for any reason, even if you were coming back.

uddy recalled going to the horse races in Galveston with his mother, Mitchell her best friend, and his mother's sister, aunt Mamie Meyer Voigt, when she was in town. llie told uddy that he could go to the races with them but he had to swear not to tell his father. I guess ick wouldn't have approved. uddy loved to go and agreed to keep that secret. Once there, he said he would run to the fence so he could feel the mud hit his face as the horses raced by. One day in particular, all of them piled into the car as soon as ick left for work. llie never drove out of 1st gear, ever. They had a great time at the races and upon returning to the car, llie discovered she had locked the keys in the car! Frantic, llie asked everyone to help her get in the car because she had a small window of opportunity to get home before ick returned from work. A kind policeman came to her rescue and got the door open. They all rushed home and ran into the house. They barely got the front door shut when ick pulled into the driveway. uddy said he was so scared they would get caught but thrilled in the excitement of it all.

uddy admitted that he could be a handful for his mother but all llie had to do to keep him in line is say, "I'll tell your daddy when he gets home," and he'd straighten right up.

I can imagine how hard WWII must have been on parents' hearts. llie made a scrapbook about his time in the service that included pictures and newspaper articles about him, including when he and his brother-in-law, Burris avis, received their pilot wings.

uddy loved to tell the story about his mother inviting the entire neighborhood, lots of family in the neighborhood as well, over to her house to iron. He managed to jump the meter several times so they could iron for hours for free on the front porch and gab. The meter reader came by one fateful day and saw what was going on and turned off the electricity. When ick got home and didn't have any lights, he went to the electric company and told them to turn his on lights immediately! e was told about his wife jumping the meter and he told them he didn't care one whit about that but if his lights weren't turned on, there would be hell to pay. They turned his lights back on. I'm sure llie got more than just a for garden seed lga! for that stunt!

e liked to talk a lot. e was very energetic. When they lived in uston, they came to Texas City every weekend and stayed with Gloria and family. When having unday dinner after church, if you paused at your plate or left the table but planned to return, you had to watch your plate or assign someone to watch it or llie would pick it up and take it to the sink to be washed.

uring those weekends, sometimes they'd go to the avis's grandparents for visits. sually they played a card game called Pitch for cents a game. Grandpa avis was very serious about the game and llie talked a lot during the game which bothered him. If llie got a good hand, she'd stop talking and whistled to herself softly. ou knew to watch out for her good cards.

llie's Voigt family married into the Maceo family and spent time with them at the ollywood inner Club that brought in famous entertainers to Galveston in the early days.

Josie Davis remembers Ollie (her grandparent -in-law)

I never knew any of my grandparents so it was so exciting to become part of a family that had two sets of grandparents They all welcomed me with open arms but llie was especially welcoming to me llie and ck always made me feel like one of their own

llie cooked for us some r specialty seemed to be pork chops fried in bacon grease and then sauerkraut being put in the pan and heated up in the drippings Fried potatoes were a side I still make this

I always loved a rocking chair in her living room and when it came time for her to give up her home, she made sure we got the chair ngela tton nfro now has this chair

When rris and I told her we were getting married, she offered me her wedding ring I told her that was a lovely thought but ck gave that to her and she needed to keep it he was generous and a sweetheart

Lila Ziegelmeyer Muzik remembers Ollie (her grandmother)

h my, what fun memories of my grandmother, llie he was a hoot! w do I sift through the memories First of all, I never saw llie in a pair of pants not ever he always had cute little house dresses that she dressed up with some kind of a boach t church was an event for llie r nday finest dresses were on display with the nday boaches and her hats llie loved her hats when going to church

llie was a past master a malapropisms he called rietta , a church friend, jeratum rietta would just smile and say, Good morning, llie! eing proud of my accomplishments, she once announced to a gr church women how proud she was of me for being elected president of the lesbians I'm sure she didn't know what that meant I corrected her and said, thespians, llie, thespians llie laughed it off

I remember how every summer for several years, Vicki and I would spend two weeks at llie and ick's That first time we went on vacation to llie and ick's, we both went to the bathroom together, as little girls will do t was just about dawn when we returned to the bedroom, but llie had made the bed, indicating we were to be up We learned that first day that one of us had to stay in bed so llie wouldn't make the bed before the sun rose Vicki and I giggled a lot because we would catch llie peeking around the corner to see if our eyes were open f she suspected one of us was awake, it was time to get up, get dressed, eat breakfast and start our day

I remembered during those same visits that llie had her dust rag and dust mop going before m he was mostly done with her version of house work by m Vicki and I thought the days were pretty long, having been up so early

I remember sitting with Vicki, llie and ck at stgate in uston en then, I marveled at their huge, old trees Pecan, I think I remember the song of the locusts and those memories of sitting outside with llie and ck and enjoying the sunset I never hear locusts without thinking about llie and ck

llie loved playing with my daughter, urette he taught her how to be a waitress urette would run around with a pencil and paper and would ask llie and ick, Can I take your order , in her little girl vo They would order food and llie would act as if she were dialing the phone to the W and , which was really the ive In, so urette could place her order llie had the patience of a saint and played this game over and over again urette loved her great -grandmother to the moon and back

llie was an easy mark for her son, ddy Through the mail, she received many requests to support various organi tions with monetary donations, and God bless her generous heart, she would write out checks to them e of her favorite charities was the Zuni Indian tribe They would send her keychains and feathered dream catchers as thank you's uddy got wind of this and thought he'd have some fun with her e calle his mother and told her that he was a representative of the Zuni Indian tribe in his worst Indian dialect told her that her contribution was not enough and that she needed to up her donations llie agreed to a t more b t addy said it was too stingy told her, after all, the Zuni trib had sent her wonderful keychains and dream catchers and she should pay more for these precious gifts ie stated that she just might not send any more money to the Zunis uddy couldn't contain himself and started laughing at which point llie recogni ed it was him and said, h uddy! and laughed herself

night when ck came home, we would play Canasta ie and ck were partners and Vicki and I were partners ie would chat all through the game, not keep up or play incorrectly and ck would chastise her by saying, For garden seed, lga! his version of cussing llie was truly an original e was funny mostly unintentionally and unaware which made her gaffs endearing and worth remembering forever e loved every member of her family e loved esus and God and truly influenced many of us as a role model ie left an indelible smile on all our hearts ite an accomplishment in a lifetime, I would think ce we went on vacation to stin and stayed at a Villa Capri otel e morning Mama and addy got up early and went to breakfast When they got back, ie and ck and ob and I were stirring around They told us about a pepper shaker at the hotel restaurant and did not want us to be embarrassed about using it It was a grinder and you had to turn the top to get the pepper out of the bottom we go to breakfast and order our eggs was looking around the restaurant and when I looked back at llie, she had her plate under the lamp shade of a small lamp in the middle of the table trying to get pepper on her eggs Classic llie!

nother time when we went to New raunfels, we were at the fabric mill store shopping for material for school dresses for me e side wall was all mirrors o make the store look bigger, I guess ie commented to my mother, ook, Gloria, that lady over there has a dress on just like mine My mother replied, eah, she kind of looks like you, too

a pot -luck dinner at church, M Costa decided to play a joke on llie slipped a bunch of silverware in her purse s we were leaving, he said real loud, ou'd better check Mrs Ziegelmeyer's purse I think she put some silverware in it llie was so embarrassed f course, M r Costa laughed and said it was a jo We all thought it was really funny not so sure about llie

We all have lots of memories about llie and ck coming and staying with my family on weekends We had so much fun almost every time, we would go to my other grandparents' house in itchcock and they adults would play cards while the kids watched TV or played outside we got to be teenagers, if they didn't have an even number to play Pitch, one of us would get to play because they liked playing partners llie was always talking during the game and then asking What's trumps or Whose lead is it she had the bid, and then she was very serious about that hand Papa avis was always serious about playing Pitch If llie got to talking too much and asking too many questions, he would say, Get in the game, lga e wasn't kidding, but she took it good natured

llie was so much fun! We would go to their house and to my mother's , ulu and I would ru our grandmother's open arms and head straight for the cookie jar in the kitchen We'd take off the top and dig our hands into the chocolate chip cookies and stuff them in our mouths ie would smile and tap the back of our hands with her hand and say, I'm gonna slap you to sleep! and laugh We'd all laugh Well e cept for my mother

I was taking a German class in high school about the time llie moved into a nursing home and was in the throes of dementia I must mention here many thanks to llie's daughter, Gloria, who saw to her mother' every need every single day Gloria is a study in what to do when a parent needs you in their old age I have such complete and utter gratitude to Gloria for her unfailing devotion to her mother and father! always knew they were in the of care with her love and attention

While at the nursing home, I remember asking llie if she could speak German I didn't get much of a response Then I asked her if she could count to in German and she did! I was so e ited! It felt like a connection to my German roots would also take aurette and uis, her great -grandchildren, to visit her was only years old but I knew how important it was for them to know and see their great -grandmother before she passed I'm still proud of that I would bring my good friend, Kathie, with me to llie's for a slumber party We would make a pallet on the floor in the living room and watch TV until late From my pallet, I would wake up and watch llie walk the house all night and whistle softly while peeking out of the living room blinds thought she had insomnia The ne t day she'd turn on her stories soap operas and watch well, until she fell asleep I'd look as she slumped in her rocking chair, head bowed r elastic cheeks would fill g with air then her bottom lip would be forced open and out would come a rush of air When she'd wake up, I'd ask her if she had been sleeping he'd always reply that she was just resting my eyes llie would do her housework early in the morning always wondered why her belt was so high on her waist, but since then, I have come to reali e she probably didn't wear a bra, so it held her breasts in place while she worked funny now!

llie drank hot tea with milk and ate toast with prunes every morning

he said warsh for wash and wrench for rinse

he enjoyed the party line phone If I ran into the house from outside while she was on the phone, she'd put her finger to her lips to shush me so I'd be quiet so she could listen to everybody's business

llie loved to play NG at the VFW hall in Tea s City My mother would take llie, me and a friend of mine to play My mother actually spent a lot of time with llie, come to think of it he thought llie was sweet and funny llie would e itedly pick out her go cards for the night when we got there, have a seat, and spread all her cards out he would tell us every game if she had cases or had makings, meaning she had one or two numbers to go he took the game pretty seriously and would go home happy if she had a go that night

I remember llie cooking for the family in that small kitchen in Tea s City paghetti d was one of her favorites somehow the entire family would be fed on her beautiful pink rose china ila now has o better be done when you got up though, because llie would take your plate! I can still walk through that house in my mind and know e ctly where everything was placed t was a fun time for me over at their house llie's oldest brother, lbert P Voigt, must have thought a lot of her because he named one of his twin daughters after her They shared first, middle and last names had to be careful while researching! Niece lga I am assuming it was lga the story is a niece and they shared the same name gave llie a beautiful diamond pinky ring which llie had made into a ring -finger ring, pre- When I was around

llie gave that ring to my mother I used to go get it out of M om's jewelry bo and wear it M y mother would just about have a stro e when she saw me with it twice! y did I get an earful I was told to keep my little hands off of that ring! n my high school graduation, my parents watched as I opened my gift from them a beautiful diamond watch with llie's ring tucked in the band I screamed as I grabbed the ring out of the bo They laughed and said they didn't even need to get me the watch M om gave me a few words advice about that ring If you lose it, don't come home That's all she had to say

I liked going to church when I was young and I especially loved Candlelight ervice at Christmas I didn't think much about getting confirmed until llie asked me if I was going I really hadn't thought about it, but I wanted to make her proud of me so I decided to do it M y teacher was Inga isa and I adored her I'm thankful for my grandmother's spiritual guidance llie always had a smile on her face and was sweet to her core just what a grandmother should be My mother grandmother lived in M nesota and I saw her only once when I was si because we didn't have the funds to travel much, so llie was IT for me

Laurette Muzik remembers Ollie (her great -grandmother)

I don't have a lot of memories of my great-grandmother, llie, but I do have a few that I will cherish forever. I can remember her being so sweet and kind to me. When I was little, she sat in her chair and watched me and my great-grandfather roll a ashtray with a tire on it for hours. I cherish that ashtray to this day and display it proudly. I thought that was great fun. I knew she loved me so much by the look in her eyes. She taught me how to be a waitress. I walked around to everyone asking if I could take their order. I also did that for hours. When llie got too old to take care of herself, my unt ori took me to see her all the time at the nursing home. I'm so grateful for that. There were times I just knew she recognized me by that same look she gave me when I was at her house. She gently patted my face, too. She was so sweet. I'm so grateful my unt ori for taking me to make sure I got to see her frequently towards the end before God took her home. What a sweet lady. I heard many funny stories about her as well. What an innocent joy this lady must have been. I loved her very much.

ngela, Mik, Kristi and Kory were very young when their great -grandmother, llie, died so they don't remember her.

In the nursing home, llie would cry out for her brother, Scar e also had dolls and would pull her sheet up, pet it and say, What a sweet baby, so Gloria bought llie a baby doll she could have with her in bed. She was thrilled and comforted. fter llie's funeral, family and e tended friends gathered at u and Gloria's house. I ori remember seeing ngela with llie's baby doll and thinking how sweet it w that she had it.

ngela, like many of us, seems to be very sentimental with items from her family. She has the infamous ironing board that got llie in trouble for jumping the meter, as well as her rocking chair where so many naps were taken. She also has several dishes from her other great -grandmother, Mame, as well as her grandfather's urris r school chalkboard and shoe shine kit. She has Gloria's mi er and a wooden Gloria made that she recently found. She treasures it all.

When I asked ngela what it means to her to have llie's ironing board and rocking chair, she said, It makes me feel closer to her, Nannie and Papa. It makes me smile and think about all the stories I have heard about her. veryone says that I remind them of llie so it warms my heart.

Ziegelmeyer (her grandparents)

rthur uis Ziegelmeyer was my grandfather, and el necke Ziegelmeyer was my grandmother. rthur Ziegelmeyer , my father, was their only child. always called my grandparents Mma Ziggy and Papa Ziggy. We were always close.

My family lived in Fort Worth and we would travel to Galveston to times a year for ster or summer vacations. Mma and Papa would usually come to Fort Worth for Christmas. My mother and I loved our grandparents to the moon and back. Papa Ziggy taught me a lot about birds. seagulls, terns, brown pelicans, pigeons. could go on forever about that. remember long drives up and down the seawall talking about Galveston history. We would also go fishing. Papa Ziggy would talk to me about business when I joined the corporate world in uston in my twenties. When I visited Galveston over the years, I always remember what a gentleman rthur r was. We loved dining out at ohn's yster ar ouse's. We would all dress up for a night of seafood. unday mornings we would go out to eat breakfast after church.

My mother and I would travel to Galveston by train during the summer and stay for several weeks. They would take us all over Galveston Island. We would go to the beach, go fishing on the jetties or on the piers.

For Christmas, Mma and Papa Ziggy would take the train to Fort Worth. We would have uncle ulius, unt Carrie and Penelope over for Christmas dinner.

Mma and Papa would write me letters and I would write them back.

My grandfather was a gentleman and a loving husband. When he went to work, he was always in a nice suit. worked for the Cotton change. When he came home for lunch, my grandmother had his lunch ready right on time.

My grandmother would cook from morning til night. She loved preparing delicious meals for guests and lots of desserts for my brother and I when we were in town. r special recipe was crab gumbo!

Papa loved to talk about all kinds of interesting things in Galveston. also loved crossword puzzles. Mma played bridge often. What I cling to the most is their love for each other. adored her and she adored him. They would sit on the sofa in the evenings to watch their favorite shows. one of which was The awrence Welk how and they would hold hands. th of them had a wonderful appreciation for life.

There were stressful times. Papa survived the panish flu pandemic in . Mma took good care of him. lost a lot of weight during his illness but Mma brought him back to health.

Arthur Sr, 27 years old, after contracting the Spanish Flu, 1918

So, Mma Ziggy told me that they would fish a lot during the depression. They would sell the fish to the grocer to help with their grocery bill. rthur was a wonderful man who loved his family. think of him often. My family and I go to Galveston from time to time and when we do, I visit their grave in the iscopal Cemetery. They are all together now, el , rthur and rthur . My mother and mother are buried in Fort Worth.

I do know that I still love shore birds on the Gulf Coast. I also love crossword puzzles. I named my son after my grandfather, my dad. He was named Phillip Arthur Ziegelmeyer. My son was born after my grandparents had already passed. He grew up straight and tall. I know they would be proud of him. My husband, George Price, was a good addition to our family as he was retired Air Force and loved us all. We have been married for years. I am so proud of my son and my husband. I must say that I am proud of all of the Ziegelmeyer family. I only hope my little letter illuminates memories of Arthur Ziegelmeyer.

My dad was born in Galveston, Texas, on February .

He was a good friend to so many people throughout his life. I find myself amazed at all of his accomplishments. Most of his friends called him Ziggy. He graduated from high school in Galveston. He was able to attend Tarleton College in Stephenville, Texas, where he was appointed lieutenant colonel, the second highest cadet office in the ROTC unit at Tarleton College. He served in World War II and returned to finish his college degree as an Industrial Engineer at Texas A&M University. My dad remained in the Army Reserve for most of his life. He attended Command and General Staff School in Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. He retired as a colonel.

My dad was a long time resident of Fort Worth. He was the past president of the Dallas-Fort Worth Chapter of the American Institute of Industrial Engineering as well as past regional vice president of The Industrial Engineering District No. He was production manager of Pangburn Candy Corporation of Fort Worth. He was also the general manager of C.C. Candy of Fort Worth.

Throughout his life, my dad was a devoted family man. He had reverence for all of his friends and family. He taught both my brother and I to enjoy the outdoors. I can remember learning to fish at an early age with my very own cane pole. He taught me how to catch flounder in Galveston. I would receive a phone call from him every Sunday night to stay in touch. I'm so grateful for his love and miss him very much. Our family was special in so many ways.

Although he lived in Fort Worth for a long time, he never lost his love for Galveston. It made sense that he retired there to be with my grandparents and near the fishing.

Rest In Peace, Daddy.

While doing research, this was forwarded to me (Lori) on Ancestry about Arthur III and it ties in nicely with his life and how this person remembered him:

I am not a relative, but doing a tree for someone else The following narrative comes from that person knew Ziggy Ziegelmeyer, not personally, bt I knew who he was erybdy knew Ziggy was much younger than Ziggy bt he was a local icon, pping around the neighbrhood in his bight red convertible sports car When we would see him, usually when we were walking home from school or the nearby candy store, we would all wave and shout out "ZIGGY ZIGGY" and he would wave and honk back at us, laughing with his head thrown back he was like a movie star to us erybdy dreamed of being like Ziggy older, carefree, driving a car like his, enjoying life wow! We moved to another town after a few years bt I remembr the day my mother told me he had passed away course, still being so young I really didn have a concept of what that meant, bt I remembr feeling sad that no one would ever again see him in his red car, looking so happy and bigger than life

rthur was attending Tes uthmost College in rownsville and planned to transfer to iversity of Tes at lington the following semester all accounts, he was a popular, friendly person who met a shocking and underserved fate

Nettie Marie Ziegelmeyer Grant

veryone who knew Nettie M arie is now gone adly, her life and stories can't be retold here I certainly didn't know her as she died years before I was born, but after researching, I feel like I can give my impressions of her here, if I may be so bold.

What I know about my great -aunt Nettie Marie comes from pictures, wedding documents and church information It's difficult to piece someone's life together with only those items, especially when you've never met them, but here's what I believe I do know

The young Nettie Marie was extremely close to Adel Schnecke , who married her brother, Arthur. They were both the same age so they probably had a lot in common. Nettie Marie and her husband, Frank Clifford Grant Jr., moved in with Adel and Arthur when they first married. Pictures show young Nettie Marie and Adel in chicken coops, holding hands, being silly together and the like. It seems they were always together. Nettie also appeared to be very close to her sister, Edith. They were the only girls in the family and there are many pictures of her and dith together, including pictures of Nettie with dith's children.

Nettie and Hazel

Other pictures show a grown Nettie Marie with her child and her nieces and nephews. It seems she loved children and took them to the beach and spent time with them. In photos, her face lights up when she was around children There's no doubt she was also a wonderful godparent to my father

Nettie M arie's playful, light-hearted spirit shines through in every photograph. I feel she was an extremely positive person who loved well and lived life to the fullest. While researching family but not her at that moment , I heard someone say, in my head, h! ou're uddy's girl, just as plain as day I had no idea was Nettie M arie he was probably wondering just W was snooping into her and her family's past! felt she was pleased with what I was doing and that gave me the perfect push to finish this project, so thanks, unt Nettie!

Although Nettie Marie only had one child, she now has many generations under her, including a new great-grandchild I think she'd be so pleased
